It's Winter at Weaver's Marina

Once again Weaver's is getting ready for winter. We made it through Sandy with no damage to our property. The Back River restoration group has continued to make a big difference in the water quality of the river.

Wildlife is rapidly returning to the area and another otter was spotted on the pier this year along with many blue heron and bald eagles. There is a special blue heron living in the picnic area, painted by Sonny Gordon.

We are planning ahead for a great boating season in 2013. A new law went into effect in September and we constructed a wash pit to reclaim the wash water that runs off when we clean the bottoms of boats. And remember to look around the picnic area in the Spring for another surprise addition.

The crew at Weaver's wish you all a Wonderful Holiday and a Happy New Year!
